Faculty-led programs

Gustolab International has a long experience of developing semester long faculty-led programs.

We work with professors and study abroad offices develop customized programs. We can be your local partner and help with program planning, budgeting and delivery.

Learn about our partnership with Hobart and William Smith Colleges to provide customized faculty-led study abroad programs specific to Food Culture, History, Architecture and Art.

Student testimonials

"This program was the best decision I ever made. Gustolab International is a great school that helped immerse me into the Italian culture while also teaching me about nutrition and sustainability" Student from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign "As cliché as it sounds, studying abroad really does change your life. For me, Gustolab has opened my eyes to the world of incredible wine, olive oil and food production in general. Sustainability is definitely something I want to implement in my life and in my diet. Come with an open mind and allow yourself to be blown away by the Italian language, food and vital environmental issues." Student from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign
