

The Global Landscape of Food

On March 1, 2022, students from the University of Illinois & Hobart and William Smith Colleges were given the opportunity to learn from Chef Cristina Bowerman of Glass Hostaria and Laura Offeddu, former manager of the Rome Sustainable Food Project during the mini symposium “The Global Landscape of Food” at Borromini Institute.

Students then joined a discussion moderated by Prof. Elizabeth Simari about local and global marketing of Italian food (including the role of international organizations like the American Academy in Rome in supporting sustainable local food).

Tuesday 1 March 2022 9-11 am
Piazza dell'Orologio, 7 Rome

THE GLOBAL LANDSCAPE OF FOOD

Italian Food: Local and Global Marketing
with award-winning chef Cristina Bowerman

Cristina Bowerman is an Italian chef, originally from Puglia but trained in Austin, Texas. She runs a Michelin star restaurant, Glass Hostaria in Rome. She originally studied foreign languages and law, and worked as a graphic designer. However, she trained at Le Cordon Bleu and began working as a chef when she returned to Italy. In addition to Glass Hostaria she has opened numerous food enterprises around the world.

AULA B

The Rome Sustainable Food Project
at the American Academy in Rome with Laura Offeddu, former manager of RSFP

Founded in 2006 under the guidance of Alice Waters, the Rome Sustainable Food Project provides the AAR community with seasonal, nutritious, and delicious food that nourishes scholarship and conviviality. Guided by the spirit of the Roman table and using the Academy's vegetable garden as well as that of nearby farms and organic suppliers, it is Academy's aim to provide a replicable model of simple, sustainable food for other like-minded institutions. The RSFP is sustained by a vibrant internship program and volunteers from the Academy community. It is also a member of Rome's Slow Food Community.

AULA A

followed by discussion moderated by Prof. Elizabeth Simari

Want to receive emails from us about future

events and activities?

Click on the button below to fill out a short form.

I want to stay updated